MOORE ENTERS SUIT

Former West Penn Head Proceeds Against Furnace Company.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13.—Sue was filed by W. E. Moore, an electrical engineer and inventor, against the Pittsburgh Furnace Company in Common Pleas Court yesterday, the plaintiff seeking an accounting for his moiety of the profits of the company arising of the sale of electrical furnaces manufactured under his inventions, and also damages in the sum of $45,000.

It is averred that in 1915, J. D. Mortimer of New York and Milwaukee, president of the North American Company, represented that his company was desirous of investing several million dollars in enterprises other than the street railway and electrical light business, and an agreement was entered into whereby Mortimer and his associates should organize a company for the purpose of developing, manufacturing and selling electrical steel furnaces under the inventions and patents of Moore.

Afterwards an agreement was made between Moore and the Securities Investing Corporation, according to the statement, by which Moore licensed the corporation to take over the operation of the patented furnaces and their development and production, the compensation to Moore being one-half of the net profits of the sales of the furnaces. He was also to be allowed access to the books of the company and to be furnished with periodic statements of its business and profits.

Mr. Moore was formerly operating manager for the West Penn, and had offices here at one time.

Care and Responsibility.

THE responsibility attached to the preparing of a remedy for infants and children is undoubtedly greater than that imposed upon the manufacturer of remedies for adults whose system is sufficiently strong to counteract, for a time at least, any injurious drug. It is well to observe that Castoria is prepared today, as it has been for the past 40 years, under the personal supervision of Mr. Chas. H. Fletcher.

What have makers of imitations and substitutes at stake? What are their responsibilities? To whom are they answerable? They spring up today, scatter their nefarious wares broadcast, and disappear tomorrow.

Could each mother see the painstaking care with which the prescription for Fletcher's Castoria is prepared; could they read the innumerable testimonials from grateful mothers, they would never listen to the subtle pleadings and false arguments of those who would offer an imitation of, or substitute for, the tried and true Fletcher's Castoria.

Children Cry For

A Word About Truth.

"Great is Truth, and mighty above all things." So says the Old Testament, yet it is equally true to-day. Truth shows no favors, fears no enemies.

From the inception of Fletcher's Castoria, Truth has been the watchword, and to the conscientious adherence to this motto in the preparation of Fletcher's Castoria as well as in its advertising is due the secret of its popular demand.

All imitations, all substitutes, all just-as-good preparations lack the element of Truth, lack the righteousness of being, lack all semblance even in the words of those who would deceive.

And you, Mothers, Mothers with the fate of the World in your hands, can you be deceived? Certainly not.

Fletcher's Castoria is prepared for Infants and Children. It is distinctly a remedy for the little-ones. The BABY'S need for a medicine to take the place of Castor Oil, Paregoric and Soothing Syrups was the sole thought that led to its discovery. Never try to correct BABY'S troubles with a medicine that you would use for yourself. MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA.

Taking Our Loss.
We have almost two hundred spring and summer gowns, such as silk dresses, georgettes, wool tapes, coats, dolmans, suits and children's wear suitable for early fall wear and vacations. We want to dispose of them quickly and regardless of cost or profit or market conditions or anything else.

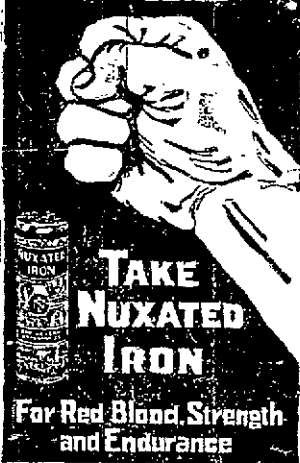

We've made up our mind to pocket a loss and price them so low that no woman can afford not to buy them. In some cases the materials are worth more than you are asked to pay for the garment. Now is your chance to economize. Bendiner's Broadway Ladies' Store, Scottdale.—Adv.

PRINCE OF WALES WILL BE PRESIDENT'S GUEST WHILE VISITING CAPITAL

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—David Guelpi, described as a "healthy, whole-some man with light hair, blue eyes and a somewhat plain, good-natured face," and better known as His Royal Highness, the Prince of Wales, is 23 years old, and as heir apparent of the British throne, is the eldest of the six children of King George V and Queen Mary.

He was born on June 23, 1894 and, according to his royal biographers, received "a careful and common-sense education, mentally and physically, and has ever shown simplicity in manner, dress and life." The prince, whose full name is Edward Albert Christian George Andrew Patrick David Guelpi (his family's favorite name for him is David), has four perhaps distinguishing characteristics: He carries a cane, is a splendid swimmer, and dancer, and is very fond of animals.

The highest dignity of all the British ruler's nearly 400,000,000 subjects, a veteran of the great war—will bear to President Wilson and the people of the United States the expression of the British Empire's appreciation and gratitude for America's participation in the conflict and her part in achieving final victory. While in Washington he will be lodged in the White House, "just as President and Mrs. Wilson were made to feel at home last December in Buckingham Palace."

The prince's royal title, briefly, is His Royal Highness, etc., K. G., G. M. G., G. N. D. E. M. C., Prince of Wales and Earl of Chester, Prince of Great Britain and Ireland, Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Carrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland upon the death of his grandfather, King Edward VII and the ascension of his father to the throne. "David" became the Prince of Wales, which by the way, carries no big revenues or prerogatives for the holder, who sits in the House of Lords.

As Duke of Cornwall, the Prince's income is said to approximate $500,000 a year, derived from rents and royalties in Cornwall coal mines. He owns 12,000 acres of land in the county of Cornwall, 50,000 in Devonshire and large areas in Somerset and London. He was proclaimed Prince of Wales on June 23, 1919, and invested at Camarvon Castle, Wales, on July 13, 1911. He maintained three residences, York cottage, Sandringham, Windsor castle, Berkshire, and Buckingham palace, London. Imported to join many wealthy clubs, the prince so far has contented himself with membership in the Bachelors' and the Royal Automobile.

The prince was a little more than 25 years old when the war broke out and with his younger brother, Prince Albert, entered the military service. He joined the Grenadier Guards at the beginning of hostilities and on November 16, 1914, was appointed an aide-de-camp on the staff of Field Marshal Sir John French. On several occasions he showed courage by going into the trenches in upper Alsace and on his 21st birthday, which he celebrated at the front, narrowly escaped death by shellfire at Loos. On October 12, 1915, a shell wrecked the motor car in which he was riding and killed his chauffeur. He escaped injury. Shortly after President Poincaré bestowed upon him the Croix de Guerre.

In March, 1916, the Prince went to Egypt as a staff captain to the commander-in-chief of the Mediterranean forces. Meanwhile the Prince had helped to raise $20,000,000 in London for the relief of wounded soldiers and sailors, had visited King Victor Emmanuel of Italy and the Italian front and flown over the Austrian lines.

When 11 years old he served aboard the battleship Hindustan as a midshipman having entered the Royal Naval College at Osborne, Isle of Wight, in 1907. Three years later he made a cruise around the world. Subsequently he entered Dartmouth and Magdalen College, Oxford. For his services in the war and other achievements the Prince was decorated with the Grand Cordon of the Legion of Honor, and the orders of the Golden Fleece of Spain, Elephant of Denmark, St. Olav of Norway (with chain), Italian Order of the Annunziata, the Russian Order of St. George, Military Order of Savoy, Siam Order of the House of Chakri and Rumanian Order of Michael the Brave.

After the armistice was signed the Prince went to Cologne where he was the guest of the American commander-in-chief and made a "hit" with the Yankee doughboys. During the war the Prince gained the reputation for being cool under fire and this reputation was emphasized last April 7 when he "looped the loop" seven times over London with an army aviator.

The possibility of the Prince of Wales being a "catch" for some clever, beautiful or wealthy American girl has been discussed in social circles on this side of the water ever since it was announced the Prince was coming here. In this connection it is recalled that His Royal Highness, at different periods in his career, has been variously reported as engaged to the Grand Duchess Olga of Russia, Grand Duchess Tatiana, Princess Elizabeth of Rumania, Princess Yolanda of Italy, Princess Helena of Greece and before the war, to Victoria Louise, daughter of the former Emperor of Germany. Denials of all these engagements were quickly forthcoming. In fact, it is said, until he reached his majority the Prince cared little for girls and his tutors encouraged him to forget them in application to his books. The Prince, it has been stated, although never a "flirtant" student has always been a hard worker.

He is now Colonel-in-chief of the Cadet Corps of Great Britain and Ireland, Chief of the Boy Scouts of Wales, High steward of Windsor, a governor of Wellington College, president of King Edward VII Hospital for Officers, Grand Master of the Orders of St. Michael and St. George and the British Empire, a Knight of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in England and Prior of Wales, and chairman of the British Fensons Committee. He was made a Free Mason a few months ago.

The Prince's only sister and four brothers are, respectively, Princess Mary, 21; Prince Albert, 23, who has been previously referred to; Prince Henry, 19; Prince George, 17; and Prince John, 14 years old. Henry is said to be a great reader and John is fond of horses.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, AUG. 13, 1919.

BETTER TO DISPLAY INTEREST THAN TO OBJECT.

The suggestion of Citizen Dull before council, that there should be no controversy at this time to endanger the project of an improved highway from Connelville to Farmington, was a bit and proper one to make. The citizens of the mountain township, more than the citizens of Connelville, are entitled to the credit of having been the originators and pushed this project along this far. It is because an objection at this time, it was the public spirited activity of residents in the vicinity of Normalville, Hill Run and elsewhere along the proposed route that gave shape to the proposition and it was largely through their efforts that the consent of the State Highway Department to arrange for the construction of the road was secured. It is the obligation, and it ought to be regarded as a pleasure and duty, of the citizens of Connelville to do all they can to have the improvement started; not to throw obstacles in the way.

Had nothing ever been done, or no plan made for a highway into and across the Indian Creek valley, the proposal of City Solicitor Higbee to build one to Somerset would be in order and, perhaps, favored above any other suggestion along this line. But the Connelville-to-Farmington route has already been given shape and certain progress made, but not enough, in actually undertaking its construction. When completed it will form a part of a road to the county capital of Somerset, but the more important thing will have been accomplished in bridging the Indian Creek valley and contiguous territory in closer touch with Connelville as a central distributing and collecting point for the business of a thriving section which should long ago have had better transportation facilities overland.

The city council has officially expressed its willingness to do the part required by the State Highway Department as necessary to have the state do its share. Unless the highway authorities are insistent upon the unpaved portion of Snyder street being improved before any construction work is done outside the city limits, it would appear that very little, if anything, stands in the way of an inauguration of this undertaking.

Under the circumstances it might be advisable for the friends of the projected highway in Connelville and elsewhere to give expression in some form of their interest in the matter so that the highway department may know that the people to be served by it are appreciative of the advantages that will accrue from its completion. That will be displaying the community spirit very much better than interposing objections to a plan which will advance the commercial interests of the city and the material wellbeing of the residents of an important farming and trading section nearby.

ACTION TOO LONG DELAYED.

There is but one thing wrong with the action of the city council with respect to the completion of the South Arch street paving—it has been delayed altogether too long.

It is little short of creditable that this thoroughfare should have been permitted to have become almost impassable merely because it did not suit the convenience of the contractor to go ahead with the work. Everybody realizes that securing material of all kinds has been difficult, and that labor and other costs have advanced, but these conditions cannot alone justify the unexcused delay on this job. These are some of the contingencies contractors must provide against, or failing to do, make the best arrangements possible to meet them, and continue the work in good faith, neither of which has been done in this instance.

The experience of this and other long-drawn out contracting jobs of street paving in the city ought to impel council to set a time limit within which work would be commenced and when finished, in default of which the contractor would incur a per diem penalty. This is exacted of contractors in almost all classes of work and there is no reason why the same principle should not apply to municipal paving contracts. The paving of a street is an inconvenience under the most favorable circumstances, but when the time of construction is unnecessarily prolonged a torn-up or half finished street becomes a positive nuisance, as all citizens who have occasion to travel over South Arch street south of Gallatin avenue can bear witness.

The duty of council in the matter is very plain. The rights of the city under the contract should be insisted upon or other steps taken to insure the early completion of the work.

"SIX POINTS" OF MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRATS.

In view of the many perplexities which tend to disturb the rest of the Democratic party in Massachusetts should have been somewhat more considerate than to have added to the number of complications with which the occupant of the White House has to deal.

In a formal complaint filed with the national chairman of the Democratic party the Democrats of the Bay State demand that the national committee repudiate the actions of President Wilson as the leader of the party. Asserting that he has wrecked the party "after we lifted him from obscurity, making him a governor and then President," the petitioners recite in detail the specific acts of President Wilson by which "he has held the party up to ridicule, as the following 'six points' enumerate:

"First—By appointing incompetent men to positions of responsibility, the most glaring examples of which are Postmaster General Burdick, Secretary of War Baker and Fuel Administrator Garfield."

"Second—By leaving the country at a time when the great problems of reconstruction and the high cost of living confronted Congress, camouflaging through Europe and causing us to lose the friendship of Italy and other countries by his actions."

"Third—By attempting to force an English covenant called the league of nations upon the American people at the cost of the destruction of the declaration of independence, of tolerating the larceny of Shantung from China by Japan, and the robbery of India and Egypt by Great Britain."

"Fourth—By his idle promise at Washington's tomb, when he declared he would demand the independence of small nations, and by refusing to take up the question at the peace table of the liberty of Egypt, India, Ireland and South Africa, and recognizing England's right to govern Egypt."

"Fifth—By his advocating internationalism, which means the loss of the national spirit of patriotism and the birth of socialism."

"Sixth—By placing American troops in Russia, a country against which Congress has not declared war, and his attempt to kill the spirit of America for only Americans."

No claim is made by the Bay State Democrats that they have exhausted the catalogue of "points" that might have been chosen but as the Greenburg Tribune observes: "they seem to have done fairly well for a start."

Much better, in fact, than the Republicans could do had they as great necessity to make political capital out of the acts of the administration as the administration has desire to act for political effect.

Opportunities to invest in government securities have not ceased with the passing into history of the victorious drive on the Victory Loan. The new Treasury Savings Certificates, which can be procured through first and second-class postoffices, banks and trust companies, have all the features attractive to people in search of a short time investment backed by the strongest security in the world—the United States government.

Internal Revenue Collector Lowellyn has no doubt found it necessary to revise his estimate of the capacity of some people for "private consumption" of certain liquids, now that he has the official figures before him of the quality held by dealers for personal use.

The good citizens along the line of the Connelville-to-Farmington road will be disposed to dissent from Solicitor Higbee's opinion as to the number of "good" farms the proposed highway would pass through. Moreover he has not qualified in the court of mountain township opinion as an expert judge of land values, hence by the rules of the court in which his ability as a legal expert is unchallenged, his testimony in the issue now joined is apt to be ruled incompetent, irrelevant, immaterial and not proper basis for a very much needed and important public improvement.

Just Folks

THE COMPLETE WORLD.

We are here to make merry, to learn how to smile,
To suffer some trials and labor awhile;
And the Lord in His goodness has facilitated this earth
So that we may enjoy it and fill it with mirth.

He has given us the blossoms to brighten our way,
The streams and the lakes for our seasons of play,
The song birds to sing us their merriest notes,
And gladden our years with the joys of his loves.

We are here for a time to develop our souls,
To battle with dangers and struggle for goals,
There are hardships to test us and wars to be won,
But the evenings are sweet when the toiling is done.

We have glorious friends all our sorrows to share,
And blue skies above when our mornings are fair,
The Lord has provided an infinite store
Of pleasures for man when his toiling is o'er.

Who wills may go fishing, who chooses to dream,
May find a soft couch on the bank of a stream;
Whatever the fancy that fills us with cheer,
The seeker for pleasure may find it down here.

It's a glorious world that we have at our feet
With all that man hungers to own it's complete,
There is nothing forgotten. Whatever our choice, of early autumn raiment for women, misses and children. We want you to inspect the distinctive styles that are coming in to our stores daily from the eastern markets. Our purchases for autumn are completed, and while you hear a general complaint of scarcity of goods of staple, popular kinds, you will not see much evidence of it in our stores. We have been very fortunate in securing medium stocks of most of the popular autumn styles. What we are going to do when they are closed out is a question. We merely give you this information, and take this occasion to advise that you buy early. It is going to be a season of the "early bird catching the worm." It would take too much space to specify the different kinds of materials we have for women's, misses' and children's autumn clothing. A visit to our stores, an inspection, would be more satisfactory to you and to us.
We all may find reason to smile and rejoice.

Your attention is also called to our stock of early autumn shoes for women, misses, and children. Goods that we purchased several months ago are now coming in. There is no noticeable change in styles—we are offering the finest colored high tops with all the different styles of vamps and shapes. There is a very complete line of good strong sensible school shoes for misses and girls. There is just about what you want in every line, and you will find the prices very reasonable.

SUGAR ALL GONE, MOUNT PLEASANT CANNOT GET CAR

Government Sends Word
Army Surplus Has All
Been Allotted.

SCARCITY IS GROWING ACCUTE

Only One Store in Town Has Sugar and a Pound to a Customer Is All
It Allows; Mrs. Marie Bossart and Brother Encounter a Rattler.

Special to The Courier.

MT. PLEASANT, Aug. 12.—Mt. Pleasant will receive no carload of sugar as was expected. On Monday when Burgess Stevens had no word from the distributing board concerning the sugar he sent a telegram to the board asking the reason and to-day John Kemling, secretary of council, received a telegram telling him that Mt. Pleasant will have no sugar as already all cars had been placed. This was a keen disappointment to the people of this vicinity as they had expected the sugar any day and James S. Braddock had advanced the money necessary to pay for a car. Yesterday sugar could only be bought at one store in town and this store sold only a pound to a customer.

Encounters Snake.

Mrs. Marie Bossart and brother Isaac Piper, who live in Ligonier valley, had a very thrilling experience while gathering blackberries in the valley near Mr. Piper's home. Mrs. Bossart was the first to see a large black snake that was lying across their path. Mr. Piper's attention was called to the snake and had some trouble in killing it as it put up a fight. Mrs. Bossart is the first Mt. Pleasant woman to encounter a snake while picking berries.

Mrs. Eliza Dinsmore.

The Rev. T. C. Harper conducted funeral services last evening at 8 o'clock for Mrs. Eliza Ann Dinsmore at the home of her sister, Mrs. Ellen Morrison. The body was taken to Connelville this morning for interment.

Ethel Franc.

Ethel, the one year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Franc of Calumet is dead at her home there. Funeral services will be held tomorrow and interment will follow in the Trauger Hungarian cemetery. Brought to Hospital.

Andy McHalleck who had his left forearm injured at the Hecla mines was brought to the Memorial hospital for treatment.

William Hoible suffered a sprained right wrist and lacerated elbow in the Standard mines and was brought to the Memorial hospital for treatment.

John Fetey, employed at the Carpenterstown mines broke his left ankle and was brought to the Memorial hospital where the fracture was reduced.

Work Busy.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Glick, Monday night at the Memorial hospital, a son.

New and striking evidence of Nerv-Worth's power to hold off the knife. Given a few days ago to Uniontown's Nerv-Worth druggist:

Wade H. Guyton:—I am a coal miner and the coal dust and dampness had completely knocked me out. I was very nervous. Poor appetite and digestion. My nerve force too low to digest and assimilate my food to give me strength. Badly affected with gas and afraid to lie down at night. I was in a hospital for over a week, the doctors claiming I had appendicitis, but an operation was postponed. I purchased one bottle of Nerv-Worth and took it as directed. Now I can eat anything I want, when I want it and digest it. My stomach trouble all gone and have gained my normal strength and vigor. Nerv-Worth proved the right thing in my case and I earnestly recommend it.

WHITLOCK MAY BE SUCCESSOR TO PAGE

AMBASSADOR TO ITALY RETURNS AND HAS CONFERENCES WITH THE PRESIDENT.

JUSSERANDS ALSO ARE BACK

Rumor That the Veteran and Popular Representative of France in Washington Intends to Resign His Position—Capital Hopes It Is False.

By EDWARD B. CLARK.
Washington.—The ambassadors are returning to town. This sounds like the beginning of an old nursery rhyme, but while there is considerable "hark, hark," the substance of the rest of the old rhyme is not in evidence. Thomas Nelson Page, ambassador of the United States to Italy, arrived here recently. He has had many close talks with the president concerning the situation in the land from which he has just come. Despite troubles over Flume questions, Mr. Page is said to have declared that Italy likes the United States above all other nations. Rumor has it at this writing that Brand Whitlock, minister of the United States to Belgium, will be appointed to succeed Mr. Page as ambassador to Italy. His Belgian career is too well known to need comment. Brand Whitlock, by the way, used to be a reporter on a Chicago morning paper, and he was a good one, too. He did everything from night police to politics. After having made good in these fields he went to Toledo, where he was elected mayor and where he wrote two or three successful books. The French ambassador, Jules J. Jusserand, with Mrs. Jusserand, has just returned to the United States. The ambassador and his wife went to France with the president and Mrs. Wilson. It is the custom for the ambassador of a country to accompany the ruler or the president of the company to which he is accredited when that ruler or president pays a visit to the land which the ambassador represents.

M. Jusserand May Resign.
There has been a rumor that it is the intention of Ambassador Jusserand to resign his position after nearly 17 years of consecutive work in this country and to return to his native land. All of Washington hopes that there is no truth in this reported intention. Jusserand is the most popular ambassador ever to have served in Washington.

Several officers of the United States army and several civilian government officials were called to the French embassy a day or two ago to be presented with the insignia of one of the orders of the several decorations of the Legion of Honor of France. The ceremony was an impressive one and it was followed later in the day by a reception which was attended by the president and the vice president of the United States, and by scores of the ranking officials of the armed services and of the government departments.

In a way Ambassador Jusserand might be called an American, for his love for this country has been marked from his early youth. He has made a study of its institutions and he has made many addresses and has written several books on American men and affairs.

Never Lost Courage and Faith.

During the days of the war I was an occasional caller at the French embassy. In those dark hours when the Germans were approaching Paris the high courage of Ambassador Jusserand never faltered, and neither was there failure of his implicit faith that all would be well in the end, though the end might be far distant. The entrance of the United States into the war was hailed by this ambassador of France as being eternally fitting. He had felt from the first that as French troops once had come to America in the cause of liberty, American troops one day would go to France in behalf of the same holy cause.

Prior to the recent return of Ambassador and Mrs. Jusserand to this country they went to the camps of the American army of occupation in Germany. There the ambassador saw the fulfillment of his hopes. He looked at the great fortress of Coblenz and over it he saw floating the Stars and Stripes. Quickly he turned to his wife and said: "Oh say, can you see?"

No one in Washington knows definitely just when the empty embassies of the countries with which the United States has been at war will claim occupants. The German embassy on Massachusetts avenue has been barred and closed ever since Von Bernstorff of despised memory left this town. He had intrigued not only in behalf of his own country but against the welfare of the fund which was his host. He had violated every canon of hospitality.

Rumor has connected the names of several prominent German officials with the appointment to office in this country in the day when such appointments will be proper. It is certain that the state department officials will carefully study the history of the appointee before declaration will be made that he is acceptable.

The Austrian embassy is still vacant. The man who comes will not be of the type of Dumba, although perhaps the latter was more weak than wicked.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"WHEN A GIRL LOVES"—Starring beautiful Mildred Harris, now Mrs. Charlie Chaplin, is an interesting attraction today. This is a thrilling story of the regeneration of an outlaw leader, and at last, through the influence of a girl's love. The story was written and adapted for the screen by Miss Weber. It is a smashing presentation of life in a mining

"A little knowledge is a dangerous thing"—and the confirmed tire "shopper" can hardly hope to have more than a very little knowledge of any make of tires—or any real understanding of true tire economy.

The car owner who rides on Firestone Gray Sidewall Tires stops "shopping." He knows that at least one make of tire delivers more miles of service. He knows that the name Firestone uniformly spells economy to him.

town, full of thrills and heart interest, and alive with scenes of picturesque beauty. The play deals chiefly with Eagle Ryan, leader of a band of outlaws and an atheist who openly voices his defiance of God, and Rose, the beautiful daughter of an eastern minister. This is the first appearance of Mrs. Chaplin in a Western drama, and it gives her an opportunity for pleasing work in an atmosphere different from that of any of her previous features. Reviewers who have seen advanced showings of the picture are lavish in their praise of her acting, some going so far as to call it the best of her screen career. If you like a big dramatic love story, rich with thrills and romance, and the most talked about actress in the country, don't fail to see this production. A selected comedy is also being shown.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"THE OUTCASTS OF POKER PLATS"—Another triumph for Harry Carey, the biggest of his screen career, is being presented today. The production is more than a motion picture. It is the living portrait of the great west itself, just as Bret Harte pictured it in his famous book, before your eyes. There are the gamblers and the rough miners seen on the streets of a picturesque village or at the gambling table the only entertainment afforded grown-up humans in those days. The picture takes the spectator back to the days of '49, and picturesque scenes of that era are faithfully depicted. It is doubtful if among the many hundreds of stars, mere actors and would-be actors in studios today, that one could be found that would better fit the role of John Oakhurst, the honest gambler in "The Outcasts of Poker Flat," than Harry Carey. The efficient actor by leaps and bounds has come to top as a versatile capable star and now he has the big role of his career and no one can gainsay, after reviewing his portrayal of the difficult role of Oakhurst, that he was the ideal actor for the part. Besides the commanding star the cast includes Gloria Hope as Sophy, beautiful girl, whom Oakhurst gives to his ward, Tommy, because Tommy wants the girl, Virginia Chester and many others.

A Threat Like This Ought to Get the Wood Cut

"Him know, him know, him know"—the words coursed like fire through his brain. He shouted aloud, and the nails of his fingers in his clenched fist bit into the palm of his hand. He could not choke the life, as his own went out, from this devil in Singapore that he had never seen—he could only die.

The uplifted arm, as though too heavy for him, fell to his side, a ghastly whiteness spread over his face, he reeled, clutched at the skylight for support, and slipped prone upon the deck. It was the nausea upon him again.

The virulence of the attack passed after a while, but for a long time he lay where he had fallen, weak and exhausted. He was semi-delirious when he stood up again, and hung limply against the skylight. Medicine—yes, that was what it meant—that stuff there spilled all about. He put some into his mouth. His eyes fastened on the ship's log open in front of him. What kind of a book was that? What was it doing there? Had he been reading? He couldn't read when he was sick.

It was very strange. No; he remembered now, he had been writing in it. Whenever any of the crew died he wrote it down in the book.

And now the crew was all dead, and he would be dead, too, very soon; therefore he should also write his own name down while he could still write. He remembered it all perfectly now—that was what the book was for.

He lurched forward and picked up the fountain pen from where it had rolled into a broken package of powdered quinine. He lurched again heavily as he leaned over the book. A nervous twitch of his hand gorged the pen-point into the page and left a blot. He shook his head in a gravely puzzled way.

It was queer that the pen wouldn't write as it had written before; it seemed to travel all over the page, and—hesitated, his hand going to his eyes again—it was strange that he couldn't think of his own name!

He was first mate, he knew that; but—yes, his name came back to him now. He wrote on laboriously. He asked the entry, dropped the pen, and stared at what he had written, adding his head.

"Now today, S. Wallen, first mate," his head the words aloud, and nodded his head again. It was true, quite true. That that damnable sun that was tormenting him through the awning was gone, that would be the end of today and he would be dead.

His eyes strayed forward along the deck and widened with a dawning fear. What were those shapes there? He began to mumble to himself, and suddenly shrieked out loud. It was a horror ship.

He shrieked aloud, rushed to the rail, and in the delirium of his mind crouched low to hide himself from this dead thing that raved like demons for medicine, ran screaming forward to where the ship's boat bumped most notoriously in its rise and fall against the vessel's hull.

He hurled himself over the side, cast the boat loose, and snatching at the oars began to pull like a madman away from the ship. Two hundred yards off he stood up and shook both fists and yelled tauntingly—they could not reach him now. But why not? Suppose they should swim after him! He lunged himself to the seat again and plied the oars furiously.

And then slowly the strokes lessened, and presently an oar fell from his grasp, and after that, with a moan, he pitched forward into the bottom of the boat—and all was blackness.

CHAPTER II.

On the Road to Pohl. "Mon," expostulated the Scotch trader, "but you're fair daff! You're but out of the jaws of death, and I'd no say you're all the way out at that. Ride a bit, there'll be neither in a mouth—or in two, anyhow."

Wallen, standing in the center of the little gas-station-wooded store-house, his eyes on the sailors who had entered a moment before, shook his head.

"I've got to get away, MacKnight," he said earnestly. "There's no use talking about it. What kind of a ship does he say it is?"

MacKnight flung out a question in the native tongue.

"He says it is a big smoke-boat," translated the trader, "which will be by way of saying it's some mean steam coaster that's so small it's no able to accommodate its own cock-roaches, d'ye mind? Men, pay no attention to it. What's another mouth or so—and you'll be strong then, and—ah, mon, but I hate to have ye go!"

Wallen, goant and this from his illness, shook his head dolefully again, though the other's words had brought a quick responsive smile to his lips.

Six weeks ago a prom from the village here had picked him up at sea and brought him, as it were, to this high-bearded man's door. He owed his life to MacKnight.

"It's no use, MacKnight," he answered. "I've got to go."

"It'll be that black devil in Singapore!" ejaculated the trader, screwing up his wizened face and pulling viciously at his beard. "You'll no play the fool, Wallen. It's not fit you are to go. Listen to me, mon: it's a matter of twenty miles across the island, as ye know well, and no convergence, ye mind. And it's no regular trader that's called, for none is due—she'll be put in for water or the like, and will be sailing again at daybreak."

"I can make it by daybreak, MacKnight," Wallen stated quietly.

For a moment MacKnight stared at Wallen, then his hands dropped from Wallen's shoulders.

"Well, go, and be damned to you, then!" he said gruffly, deep down in his throat to hide his emotion—and, turning, stepped abruptly outside.

There were not many preparations to make—very few.

Wallen's worldly possessions were his only through the generosity of the trader. But MacKnight did not stop at that now, for, five minutes later, as Wallen started for the night's tramp across the island, a Malay guide, well loaded with supplies, started with him, while MacKnight cursed with earnest profanity as they wrung each other's hand.

At the edge of the clearing Wallen looked back. On the great bearded figure that leaned against the door frame of the solitary trading station Wallen's eyes lingered.

The man waved his hand and shouted.

"Mon, ye'll no forget MacKnight o' Arra! Ye'll no forget MacKnight, mon!"

And then suddenly a mist dimmed Wallen's eyes. He tried to shout back—and could only wave his own hand in return. And then the trees hid the trader from view.

Forget MacKnight! The man who had nursed him back to life as a mother would nurse her child! Forget that solitary human outpost of civilization—a man with an iron fist, a barbed-wire tongue and a heart as tender as a woman's! No; he would not forget MacKnight!

He forced a smile to his lips. One made strange friendships in these far parts of the world, and made them under strange circumstances. The chances were a thousand to one that he and MacKnight would never meet again—but, for all that, it was a friendship that would last.

Twenty miles across the island before daybreak!

Wallen fell to wondering what sort of a ship and, more pertinent still, what sort of a skipper was on the ship that had put into Pohl. He had refused MacKnight's offer of an advance of money, and he hadn't a penny—but he was satisfied that he would not be refused passage in any case. He could work his way.

A white man who knew his business was worth his weight in gold on a ship any time in these parts. It was true he wasn't any too fit yet; but he was fit enough for that, fit enough—a dull flash came into his face, and his eyes hardened—fit enough to get to Singapore somehow!

He had not forgotten that ghastly afternoon in the reek of the pest ship, nor the Chinaman who had died in his arms whispering of Drink-House Sam of Singapore! Forget! He had thought of nothing else all these weeks, raved of it in his delirium, so MacKnight had told him.

There was one thing dominant in his life now—Drink-House Sam of Singapore, the man who had tried so mysteriously to take his life, to stab at him treacherously, without warning, out of the dark.

Singapore! Singapore! It was never out of his mind now. To get there, to force the truth, the motive, the reason, the story behind all this from the human spider that lurked in his web, and then—his fists clenched fiercely—and then settle with the man himself!

And that was why he must get to Pohl before daybreak, before this steamer sailed.

He walked on steadily, without sense of fatigue, his mind abnormally active; and then, with a little shock of surprise, as the Malay made signs to halt and set about kindling a fire, he noticed for the first time that it had grown almost dark.

And also, to his surprise, he noticed that where he had experienced no fatigue before, he was, as he sat down,

Big Lot of Hay Fever Jokes

But Kentucky Man Says—"People Who Belong to Hay Fever Colony are Kidding Themselves."

Wouldn't Be Any Rose or Hay Fever if Simple Home Remedy Was Given a Chance.

"Yes, there's a real NINETY-NINE per cent effective remedy for hay or rose fever," frankly states a druggist in a prosperous Kentucky city.

"But I don't expect anyone to believe me, because the treatment is so easy and the cost not worth mentioning."

"The annual crop of hay-fever jokes would be mighty scarce if people would get an ounce of Mentholized Arcine and by just adding water that has been boiled make a pint of liquid that will prove a real help to all who suffer."

"Many of my hay-fever friends tell me that by snuffing the gargle and snout or spray the nostrils a few times a day the expected severe attack often fails to appear and in cases where it does show up is very mild and does not annoy."

"The Better Class of Pharmacists" who dispense Mentholized Arcine say it will greatly modify any attack even when taken three or four days after hostilities begin.

Go to a real live druggist when you get ready to make a pint.

Bio-Ferri is without doubt the grandest remedy for nervous run-down, weak, anemic men and women ever offered and is not at all expensive. All druggists in this city and vicinity have a supply on hand—sell many packages.

suddenly grateful for the rest.

He scowled a little over his dipper of tea that the Malay had prepared—and rubbed his leg muscles vigorously. They twitched nervously as he put his weight upon his legs. That was bad! His lips set grimly. Well, bad or not, they'd have to take him across the island before daybreak!

They started on again.

An hour went by, and he was obliged to rest—and after another start and many more after that, to rest again and again with alarming frequency. And, worse still, his progress when he was walking kept growing less and less.

It was black in the tropical forest. He could see nothing, and he stumbled constantly in the vines and creepers that everywhere overgrew the path. He was at last forced to admit that he was not making much more than a mile an hour, and twenty miles at a mile an hour was—he groaned.

It was breaking day when Wallen finally gave up—gave up when will power, and the grit of the man that did not know defeat, no longer sufficed for the physical strength to go farther.

WEST PENN FOLKS HAVE A FINE TIME AT ANNUAL OUTING

Glory," a fine specimen indeed, was raised to the breeze and as its folds swung out the crowd cheered with a vim. A service flag was then raised bearing in its center a large star, on which appeared prominently the figures 332, that being the number of West Penn men to enter the service of the country. The speaker of the day was to be E. O. Tabor, Esq., of Uniontown, but his being a few minutes late brought the unusual treat of a happy appreciative speech from Vice President Fish of the West Penn company. He is a whole-hearted man, and his remarks were received with much enthusiasm. He closed with a hearty invitation to all present to come again next year, and this special invitation from the vice president of the big company will be gladly accepted. Mr. Tabor, having arrived, was given a hearty welcome and delivered a very interesting speech. After complimenting the men and the company, he turned to the service flag and gave highest praise to the West Penn boys who had answered their country's call. He also praised the work of those at home who had done their duty and had so loyally supported the boys at the front. He stated that the war in which nationalized citizens from all countries had fought side by side with native Americans had stopped forever the often heard "dago," "hunkie" and "damned foreigner," and that henceforth all would be Americans. By the time the speaking was concluded the rain had begun to fall, but so lightly that the following events were able to be held. Baseball throwing for women over 15, in which 16 contested, won by Mary R. Barlow of Elizabeth, Pa. She took hold of the ball like a professional player, swung as a pitcher and landed the ball far over the ropes. Some others threw well, but fell far short. Eight contestants entered the 50-yard dash for girls over 15, but it was easily won by Mary Engster of McKeesport. This was the third time she had won this prize. This year it was a $2.50 gold piece. Miss Engster knows what she is doing. She was not so foolish as to wear a narrow skirt and high-heeled shoes, and was not hampered as were others. One even tried to run with a hobbleskirt on and fell by the wayside when but half way down the course.

The peanut race for girls under 15, in which there were 12 contestants, was won by Eldora Byerly of South Greensburg. The mothers' guessing contest was won by Mrs. Charles Brownish of Connelville won the men's 100-yard dash. C. H. Hall of McKeesport won the conductor's race.

Robert Pierce of Jeannette won the boys' race. Frank Buttermore of Connelville won the line-men's tug-of-war, and William A. Goglia of Connelville the 100-yard dash for the mechanical department.

The children's carnival was a grand spectacle, participated in by fully 300 children. The company presented each with a flag, a cap, a horn and lolly-pops. Then blowing their horns and waving their flags they marched several times around the large dancing pavilion, proving beyond a doubt that so far as the West Penn is concerned the future of America is safe.

The baby contest was also fine. Twenty-one babies under two years of age were in line, and each mother was presented, for baby and herself, with a fine box of candy. Vice President Fish went along the line and inquired specially about each little babe, and complimented the mothers on the fine appearance of the little ones.

The only accident to mar the day was a fall on the "joy wheel" of Roger Miller of Penuville, a girl having accidentally caught at him when she slipped on the wheel. The fall hurt him slightly, but the first aid soon brought him around and he was sent home in an auto.

RED CROSS LEAGUE JOINING IN FIGHT FOR BETTER HEALTH

Preventable Disease All Over the World Is to be Systematically Combated.

The most tragic and costly disaster which has ever faced the world is preventable disease. We have regarded it with patience but we have done little to fight it. With the coming of peace the Red Cross League is joining in a constructive effort to combat slowly, steadily and persistently this disaster until public health organization and education have become universal. The need for such activity is great. Forty-eight thousand soldiers have met battle deaths overseas, but the world casualty list of the influenza epidemic was 6,000,000 people.

The fact that this disaster is unnecessary and largely preventable makes it worth talking about, and worth doing something about. In the last two or three decades great discoveries have been made in scientific medicine which bear directly upon the causes underlying disease, the reason for contagion, and the method of checking great epidemics. The study of medicine has taken on a totally new aspect. It has assumed a social significance, and therefore becomes a social instead of an individual problem.

An international health organization is necessary because we must realize that an epidemic in southern Europe is almost as great a menace to us as it is to neighboring powers. There is a vital necessity for dissemination of health propaganda abroad. Particularly in this necessary in the devastated regions where the people are unable to do it for themselves, and their governments are almost bankrupt after the crushing burdens of war. The health needs of the Balkans may on the surface appear to be of little concern to us in the United States, but if an epidemic develops there we are likely to consider it a vital matter in a very few weeks.

The countries of the European continent are sick. The idea of a healthier and therefore a happier people appeals to every man no matter what his nationality. We want to reduce suffering and disease. We want to save the children. It is an ideal for which each one of us is willing to strive, but we cannot accomplish the big end by working as individuals. The situation is too complex. We must labor in unison. The people of America through their Red Cross with its organization perfected and workers mobilized must do their share in completing the tasks that confront humanity. The appeal to be made in the fall is an appeal to make secure the peace won by the sword; to give loyal support to this new after-war work of the Red Cross; to ease the burdens of our more unfortunate associates in the struggle for freedom, and to make the world a better place to live in than it ever was before.

The Ideal Woman.

The great Napoleon once said: "My ideal woman is not the beautiful, featured society belle, whose physician tries in vain to keep her in repair, but the matron who reaches middle age in complete preservation—that woman is rendered beautiful by perfect health." To attain such health in middle life a woman must guard against those ills which drag her down and produce nervousness, headache, backache, sleeplessness and "the blues." The standard remedy for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which for 45 years has been restoring women to health and strength.—Adv.

How Long Will You Live?

"Most people die before reaching middle life, and comparatively few live to be old."

"Examine the history of the people you know and you will find that very few of them had parents who died before seventy, while a considerable proportion had parents who lived to be eighty or even much older."

"Why?"
Dr. Alexander Graham Bell propounds these questions, and answers them, in a communication to the National Geographic Magazine in which he sets forth this theory:

"The weak and delicate are not capable of bearing large families. It is the strong and vigorous who live to extreme old age and leave many descendants behind them."

"The children of long-lived parents are, on the average, stronger, more vigorous, and longer-lived than the children of others; and there are many more of them per family."

"Here, then, we have evidence of the existence of a natural process at work among human beings tending to improve the vigor and vitality of succeeding generations."

Dr. Bell quotes genealogy records to show that "a very large proportion of each generation has sprung from a very small proportion of the preceding generation, namely, from the people who lived to be old."

"Another inference," he continues, "is that the long-lived people left more descendants behind them in proportion to their numbers than the others, and therefore, on the average,

"Of course many widowers may have married again when they were well advanced in years and have had families by such marriage, but this explanation does not apply to women."

"We cannot, for example, suppose that mothers who died at fifty would have had more children had they lived to be sixty, or eighty or a hundred; and yet investigation shows that the mothers who lived to extreme old age actually had, on the average, larger families than those who died early in life."

"The few who live to extreme old age are people who have proved themselves to be immune, or at least resistant, to the diseases that have carried off the vast majority of their fellows. They have been exposed to all the diseases and accidents of life and have not succumbed. They had proved themselves to be resistant, not to a single disease alone, but to all diseases; and the fact that they transmit to their offspring a tendency to live long shows that the disease-resistant quality is handed down to their descendants."

"Of course, longevity itself is not a thing that is capable of direct inheritance; but the fact that longevity seems to run in families shows that a tendency to long life can be inherited."

"What is really inherited is probably a tough, wiry constitution which enables the fortunate possessor to survive the multitudinous ills that flesh is heir to and live on to the

$1,000 FOR A NAME

Word Wanted to Describe All English-Speaking People.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13—Can you create the one word which will best denote the United States and all parts of Britannia? If so, you will be paid at the rate of $1,000 a word. The World Trade Club of San Francisco has offered $1,000 to the person who suggests the word which, in the judgment of the club's Metric Campaign committee, is best adapted to worldwide use.

The competition is open to all humankind. The money will be paid to the winner at noon on May 15, 1920, by a committee appointed by President W. H. Hammer of the World Trade Club.

"Brit-Am," "Ambria," "Ambricitia," "Br-Am," "Sam-Bull" are some words, thus far suggested. New names are constantly coming. The World Trade Club is offering this award because in carrying on its present campaign for the adoption of metric units by all English-speaking people—the United States, the British Isles, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, United South Africa and so on—it was hampered by the lack of a single short word which would express all these.

The metric units of weights and measures are now used by all the world except "Brit-Am," "Ambricitia" or "Sam-Bull."

Twelve hundred nurses and their baggage moved in one day. By the next day, Miss Flora Curtis, head of the Y. W. C. A., hastily packed and left. Six workers had knocked down several partitions to make a huge recreation room, had hung curtains and moved furniture so that the nurses might have their usual cup of tea that afternoon and a party that evening.

The day following word came that Savenay was to be completely evacuated and everything—hospitals, nurses units, convalescents and Y. W. C. A. hastily packed and left. At the end of the second day after evacuation orders were received Savenay was again a quiet French village despite the fact that a train load of patients and 600 nurses came in that night and had to be sent out and on to Brest as they were.
